conference overview

AIA Philadelphia, the largest Chapter of the American Institute of Architects in Pennsylvania and the Delaware Valley region, presents the sixth annual Design on the Delaware regional conference. AIA Philadelphia has partnered with 25 related professional organizations and AIA chapters for the programming and planning of this three-day event. This collaboration will produce an interdisciplinary convention that provides participants with new perspectives on the issues and opportunities of our built environment in the Delaware Valley region and beyond.

conference program

Design on the Delaware will offer over 36 educational programs, tours, trade show, two plenary sessions and opportunities to network and socialize with leaders in the building and design professions.

conference participants

Design on the Delaware attendees are architects, planners, landscape architects, engineers, contractors and other design/building professionals from the 25 collaborating professional associations and organizations. These organizations represent a membership of more than 11,000 design professionals from Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. Historically, more than 80% of the attendees are architects. 50% of conference attendees are senior staff at their firms. 43% are firm principal or partners.
